About Mansfield College

Mansfield College is one of the 39 constituent colleges of the University of Oxford. It has around 250 undergraduates, 180 graduates and 40 visiting students. This relatively small size engenders friendly and close relationships not only among students and tutors, but across the whole community at the College.

Mansfield has the highest state sector intake among Oxford colleges, and regularly surpasses the targets the University has set for widening participation and increasing social mobility in undergraduate admissions. We value diversity and difference as necessary elements of a vibrant intellectual culture. Mansfield admits 8 students a year in English. The Principal is Helen Mountfield KC.

The College is home to the Bonavero Institute of Human Rights, within Oxford University's Law Faculty, which was opened by the late Secretary-General of the United Nations, Kofi Annan, in 2018.

In 2021, Mansfield was recognised as a university College of Sanctuary by the UK charity City of Sanctuary, after demonstrating an ongoing commitment to nurturing a culture of inclusivity and awareness on campus for those seeking sanctuary (which includes refugees and asylum seekers), as well as in the wider community.
